Domestic Tour Registration Still on Hold

A month ago it felt like we really might be turning a corner as new COVID cases seemed on the decline in much of the country but that trend took a serious turn for the worse as 43 of our 50 states are experiencing sharp increases in infections, hospitalizations and even in some places increased deaths. COVID restrictions are actually being re-implemented in many of the areas we hope to tour next year. There is some good news as it appears that we will have a new federal administration that is going to listen to and follow the science and there has also been some promising news on the vaccine development front. Whether this is enough to be able to run our 2021 tours is still very much up in the air.

At this point it seems that it's still best to hold off on registration for the time being to minimize the cost of PayPal fees and refunds until we get a better idea as to how we can move forward. As stated last month, we completed planning and scouting our four domestic tours and made sure that we have hotel reservations that are fully refundable should we find ourselves unable to actually host them. Again, thanks to your responses to our earlier survey, knowing that the vast majority of you are willing to help defray some of our unrecoverable fixed costs have made this possible.

As we look to future tours, we recognize that all the unknowns enumerated last month are still with us. Unfortunately, we still don't have the answers but we can promise you that we will continue to carefully assess the situation and that we remain fully committed to offering, as we always have, the safest tours possible.
